Two concepts, one direction

CONCEPT A

Heritage Seal

AL REEF & LAUREL

A Levantine soap house: the maker's seal, a refined serif, laurel and terracotta. Craft-led and timeless.

Strength: instant heritage and gifting appeal. Risk: can feel like every other "artisan" soap shop.

CONCEPT B

Raw Fiber

GRADE A · 58 / CM²

The loofah shown honestly: cross-sections, specs, farm coordinates. Transparent and product-first.

Strength: credibility and e-commerce clarity. Risk: can read cheap and clinical without a luxury frame.

FINAL DIRECTION

Field & Marble

A's luxury-house restraint frames B's raw honesty. The seal, the serif and the Window hold the product; the specs and the fibre prove it.

Hero colour moves to Nile Silt so the brand owns a colour the green-heavy category doesn't.

Why we exist

PURPOSE

Bring the honesty of the hammam back to the everyday shower.

Real materials from real farms. Nothing plastic, nothing hidden.

STORY

A vegetable from Damanhour, finished like a luxury object.

Luffa gourds ripen on Nile Delta trellises, dry for 21 days in the sun and travel to the Gulf with Levantine laurel soap. [Founder story: add the founders' Egyptian roots here.]

MISSION

Put a traceable, plastic-free bath ritual in every GCC home, renewed every 60 days.

Measured by renewals, not first orders.

Quiet pride in doing it properly.

Before

A plastic pouf I forget to replace. Bathing is a chore.

With us

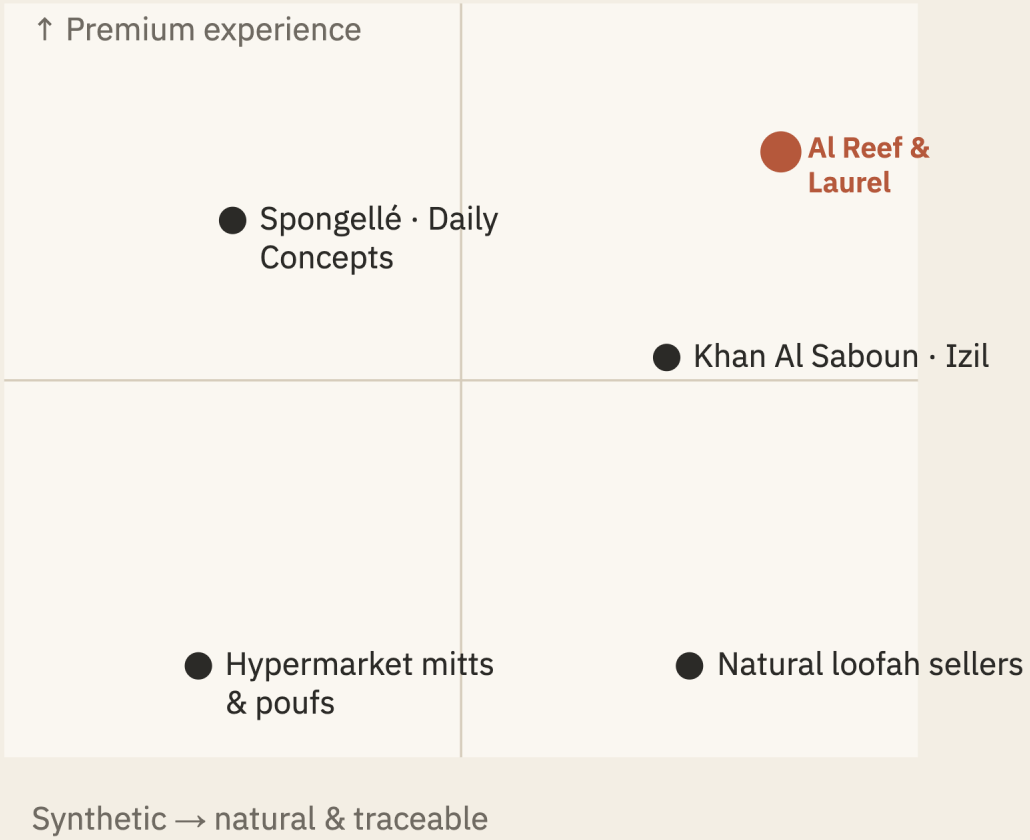

A ritual I trust: I know where it grew and when to renew it.

Feeling

Grounded, cared-for, quietly in the know. Never smug, never preachy.

طقس

The premium-natural corner is empty

The gap

No brand owns the loofah itself as a premium, traceable object.

The price ladder

Hypermarket mitts sell around AED 8–24; heritage soap houses sell gift boxes. Nobody sells a renewable ritual.

The behaviour

Loofahs are kept far too long; a built-in renewal cue is both a hygiene benefit and a business model.

Exact visuals, copy that smiles

Trait	Means	We say	We never say
Specific	Numbers and places persuade.	“Sun-dried for 21 days in Damanhour.”	“Ethically sourced from exotic lands.”
Dry wit	One light twist per piece.	“Yes, it’s a vegetable. No, don’t cook it.”	“Get scrubbin’, loofah lovers!”
Generous	Teach the ritual and the why.	“Hang it to dry. Dry fibre lasts longer.”	“Revolutionary exfoliation tech.”
Unhurried	Short sentences, no urgency tricks.	“Your tag is fading. A fresh one ships Tuesday.”	“HURRY! Only 3 left!”

English first, British spelling, no exclamation marks, numerals for numbers. Arabic appears as one meaningful word in Ruqaa, never a translation.

One idea, three proofs

Layer	Message	Proof
Core	The hammam, every morning.	The Duo: loofah and Sabon Ghar made to work together
Trust	Know exactly where it grew.	Batch QR: farm, harvest month, Grade A fibre
Hygiene	Know exactly when to renew.	Fading cotton tag + 60-day delivery
Planet	Nothing plastic, nothing wasted.	Compostable loofah; box becomes a caddy

Audience	Leads with	Opening line
Considered self-carer	Hygiene	“Your loofah tells you when it’s time.”
Gifter	Heritage	“A Levantine ritual, beautifully given.”
Grooming man	Function	“Reach every part of your back.”

STRATEGY · CURATED TAGLINE

Grown, not made.

Four words that carry the origin, the honesty and the wit. Alternates for campaigns: “The hammam, every morning.” · “When the tag fades, so should your loofah.”

LOGO · MISUSE

Four ways to break it

✕ Never stretch or squash

✕ Never recolour, especially green

✕ Never place on pattern or busy photos

✕ Never crowd the clear space

Also never: add shadows or outlines, rearrange the words, set the wordmark in another typeface, or translate it into Arabic letters.

for every morning

GRADE A · 21 DAYS

Five rules each way

Do	Don’t
Set headlines in sentence case.	Don’t set headlines in all caps; caps belong to the wordmark and the spec rail.
Track the spec rail +120, Plex Medium.	Don’t track body text or the display face.
Use one Ruqaa word, chosen for meaning.	Don’t set Arabic sentences in Ruqaa or translate the English line beside it.
Keep Cormorant at 28 px or larger.	Don’t use Cormorant for body copy or prices.
Use tabular figures for prices and specs.	Don’t add a fourth typeface for “variety”.

GRAPHIC ELEMENTS · ICONOGRAPHY

Nine icons, one line weight

Construction

64 px grid, 2.6 px stroke, round caps and joins, no fills. Drawn by hand to match the Three Chambers line.

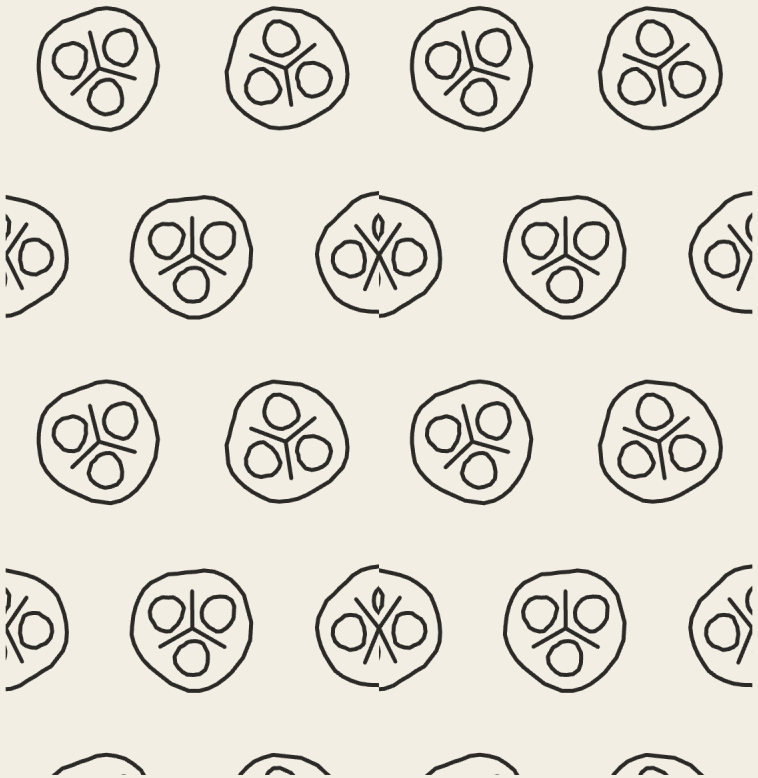

Colour

Basalt on light, Ecru on dark. Nile Silt only for the one active state on a page.

Use

Spec sheets, product page benefits, packaging side panels at 8 mm minimum, never as decoration.

The Three Chambers, repeated

Channel	How the pattern appears
Print	Tissue paper and ritual card backs: Basalt line on Ecru, 80 mm pitch
Packaging	Inside the box flap and gift chest lid; blind deboss on rigid boxes
Digital	Section breaks and email footers at 8% opacity; never behind text
Retail	Shelf strips and pop-up walls in Ecru on Nile Silt

Every slice is rotated at random and drawn from a real cross-section, so the pattern never looks machine-perfect.

SOCIAL · AUDIENCE PROFILE

Who we're talking to

PRIMARY

The Considered Self-Carer

Women 25–40, UAE residents and Saudi urban professionals. Reads ingredient lists, buys clean beauty, hates waste and hates guessing.

"Real, safe, beautiful, and I never have to think about replacing it."

Where: Instagram, TikTok, WhatsApp

SECONDARY

The Gifter

Buys for Ramadan, Eid, weddings and corporate thank-yous. Wants heritage that looks expensive and is actually useful.

"A gift with a story that arrives ready to give."

Where: Instagram, Ounass, Google search

GROWTH

The Grooming Man

Men 22–45, gym-goers, strong in KSA. Wants function first: reach, grip, durability.

"Built for the back. Tells me when to swap it."

Where: Snapchat, TikTok

PHOTOGRAPHY · MOOD BOARD

Materials, light and one idea per frame

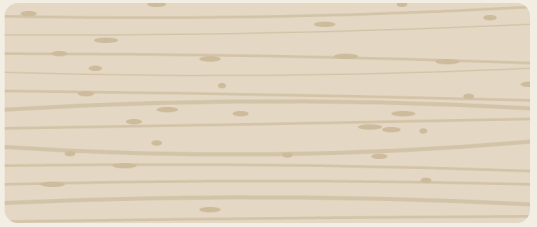

Raw fibre · Fill the frame; every strand sharp

Nile silt · The hero colour as a real material

Cut Sabon Ghar · Green core, gold crust

Travertine · The Gulf bathroom surface
